

Counseling and Supervision PhD
College of Education, Department of Counseling and Psychology
Stephanie Kazanas

The Department of Counseling and Psychology has the primary mission of offering strong academic programs in counseling and psychology that serve the community and public school system. Our Ph.D. program in Counseling and Supervision prepares and enhances students' capacity for skill development and critical thinking as they go on to become clinicians,

We're excited that we've exceeded this criterion in just the first year of data collection and the third year of our doctoral program. We will continue to emphasize these ideals in an effort to promote these professional dispositions. .iSd. ggaitac.al program. We46nphasize these ideals in an effort to Counseling faculty had 9 publications and 23 presentations, while doctoral students had 1 publication and 8 presentations.

While we haven't established a criterion for success (yet), we're encouraged by this amount of scholarly activity, particularly from the doctoral students, who are with us for just three short years. This level of research engagement highlights the prioritization of scholarly inquiry across counseling faculty and students. These publishing/presenting opportunities guarantee a more informed and engaged set of counselor educators on the job market and in our communities.

Promote opportunities for leadership in counseling, counselor education, supervision, and mental health profession

Number of leadership positions held by doctoral students

Number of leadership positions held by doctoral students

a CACREP site visit this Fall, and the evaluation team may provide additional recommendations to consider.

